GARNISH LOS ANGELES OFFERS FREE CLASSES TO YOUNG MUSICIANS IMPACTED BY RECENT WILDFIRES

Music industry professionals make meaningful difference with introductory classes in music production & DJ performance

LOS ANGELES (February 4, 2025) – Garnish Los Angeles is offering free introductory classes to young musicians impacted by the recent California wildfires.

The classes, which will be offered to students between the ages of 14 and 18, include music production and DJ performance, and will be held on Sundays between 9 a.m. – Noon. The classes begin on February 16 and will run for one month at the state-of-the-art facility located at 12435 Oxnard Street in North Hollywood.

This free program is spearheaded by Garnish Los Angeles Director Appu Krishnan and will be taught by a collective of music industry professionals whose experience ranges from GRAMMY-nominated songwriting to Billboard chart-topping artistry.

“When life throws a disaster like the recent Los Angeles fires at a community, it’s our responsibility as a family to come together and lend a hand to those who were affected,” says Krishnan. “We thought the most meaningful way was to use our talents and time to empower young musicians. Together, let’s harness the power of music to rebuild and uplift.

“Music has the magic of developing self-confidence, discipline and social skills. Our students get to meet others of similar interest, sharpen their skill sets and who knows what those collaborations can turn into? If we can bring a little positivity to folks going through these stressful times, it’s worth it, and that’s what these Sunday classes are all about.”

Prospective students and parents impacted by the Palisades and Eaton fires can complete an online questionnaire. For more information about Garnish Los Angeles, please visit their website.
